ST. LEGER DAY IN HONGKONG

Night Star, Trentbridge And Warrington Expected To Win

CRACK SHANGHAI JOCKEY TO PARTICIPATE

(By "Morning Dew")

To-day is St. Leger day in Hongkong and the best ponies in the various classes will be seen at Happy Valley. Fields are likely to be on the small side and favourites should have a good day.

Mr. S. Y. Sung from Shanghai will be riding and among other ponies he will be taking out Mayflower, Vigilance, and Don.

Night Star is in tip-top condition and when Mr. S. N. Pan mounts him for the Fremantle St. Leger, he is sure to be a red-hot favourite. He should win easily. The same applies to Trentbridge in the Hongkong St. Leger, the pony being booked to start under Mr. A. J. P. Heard.

The Sub-Griffins St. Leger is a more open affair, Warrington being a bit more fancied than De Minimis. Mr. L. G. Frost will be riding the favourite while De Minimis will go to the post under "Johnny" Heard.

THE TIGER FOR FIRST LEG

The "Daily Double" is on the third and seventh races and the former event is very open. The Tiger is expected to win.

Mr. S. Y. Sung who will be racing for the first time in Hong Kong to-day, is one of the best Chinese jockeys up North. His record for 1932, shows 24 wins, 14 seconds, 19 third and 184 unplaced.

The programme commences with a mile race for "A" Class ponies and although Diana Bay concedes very many pounds in weight she ought to win comfortably. There is very little one can say about this race. Diana Bay is fit as a fiddle and it would be expensive to try and back something to beat her. King's Justice is running better now than he ever did, but is not class enough for the mare. Sadko too, is going quite well. Blue Star is the only other pony likely to start here.

Australians. Night Star has shown during the training in the past, few weeks that he is still the best Australian pony and whatever improvements the others have shown during the second half of the season, they cannot touch him. City of Brisbane is moving exceptionally well and ought to finish second, though many people may prefer Portia's chances. Another pony that looks as if he is going to have a good deal to say about the placings is Rosy Morn, though the mile and three quarters may prove too long for him. Nguk is a good strong customer and may do much better over a mile and three quarters than he has done hitherto, but Nguk must not take the lead too soon, if he is going to do well at all. Reason, Tecumseh, Sunup and What's That do not worry the favourites.

Although Night Star looks a certainty, the race for second and third place is extremely interesting.

The First "Leg."

The first leg of the doubles is on the Five Furlongs for "B" Class ponies and the race has been well selected, for it appears to me the most open event of the day.

Several ponies have about equal chances here, these being King's Bounty (Proulx), Valorous (King), Don (Sung), The Tiger (Frost), Pride of Taingtao (Pan), Wonderfull Stag (Deltz), Flying Tourist (Noronha), and Jungle Jim (Soares) are also starting.

King's Bounty holds the record for this distance, but he is not the pony he used to be, and although he may win to-day's race, he should not start favourite. Valorous with Mr. Heard up is a distinctly good proposition and should be very near at the finish. The Tiger is in the pink of condition and may pull off to-day's race. He has just the right weight to carry. Don, with Sung on the saddle, may create a surprise, and keep this under your hat. Pride of Taingtao is intended for the big surprise of the race. Put on odd ticket on him.

Hong Kong St. Leger.

Trentbridge is in a class by himself in to-day's big race and he should not have much trouble when he goes out in the mile and three quarters. Charming Star (with Mr. Frost up) should get plenty of opposition from Cossack's Beauty in the race for second place and on the whole the latter looks more promising. Sung will probably ride Cossack's Beauty, unless he is given Mayflower to ride, a pony with no chance at all.

Farling Handicap.

There are nineteen entries for the six furlongs sprint for subscription griffins of this season that have not won more than one race. Swale, on his running in Macao should be able to walk away with this race and the only opposition that I can see is from Paul Jones and Iron Grey. Charming Face is fancied in some quarters, but I should not be surprised to see him entirely unplaced as he is a bit of a problem in a race. Iron Grey has been running very well in his early morning gallops, and may pop a surprise, though on the whole Swale looks the best thing.

Sum Chun Handicap.

The novices event over a mile seems a very good thing for Brechin with Mr. P. F. Botelho on the saddle. The pony is fit enough and there is very little to beat. Gold Key in the "C" Class at 162 pounds is not a bad proposition at all, but with Brechin in his present condition, there is no likelihood of a close race. Mike with S. W. Tang up should get a place, unless Alexandra Hall, with Pearce on the saddle can beat him. There are the four ponies in the race and of these Brechin is sticking out as the best thing.

Sub-Griffins St. Leger.

With Golden Dragon not starting, the Sub-Griffins St. Leger has been reduced to a tussle between Warrington (Frost) and De Minimis (Heard). Other starters here are Vigilance (Sung), Partnership (Lain), Melody (Pan), Burgomaster (Davis) and Gay Butterfly (Noronha). Warrington was reported to be in poor condition, a couple of weeks back, but his appearance on the course certainly belies this rumour and he is fit enough to win. The distance may prove to be a bit of a bother, but Frost can be relied upon to nurse Warrington long enough to stay the distance and win. De Minimis has figured among the placings in every race that he has started in this year and to-day's race will hardly find him left in cold. Burgomaster is abtiffing very well and is a much better pony to-day than he was at the beginning of the year. Vigilance and Melody are short distance ponies but I like the chances of Partnership as an outsider, also Gay Butterfly.

Taipei Handicap.

The last race of the day is an other good open event. Sticky-past, a known sprinter may run away with the five furlongs, although I hear he is not strongly fancied. Wembley Stag after his good showing on Sunday will find many supporters, but does not seem promising at 164. So far, this weight has always beaten the pony. Festival Eve at 158 and Belter Skelter at 154 look like two very good things. Cebu at 145 is not so bad a proposition. Adam is good, while Orlando is a distinctly better bet. A very open race altogether and if Orlando gets well away, the race will be all over, but shouting.

METROPOLITAN WATER BOARDNew Chief Engineer Appointed

(Special Ad-Mail Service)

London, Oct. 30.
At yesterday's meeting of the Metropolitan Water Board, Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. Davidson, the chief engineer to the Liverpool Corporation Waterworks, who will retire on pension on attaining the age of 60, on May 30, 1934, was appointed chief engineer to the Board for a period of five years as from June 1 next. He will receive a salary of £6,000.

The General Purposes Committee pointed out that last July Mr. H. E. Silgco, the chief engineer, was retired on account of ill-health as from December 31, 1933. Important matters requiring early consideration in regard to the adequacy of the board's works to meet future demands were pending, including questions of additional storage, improve means of distribution, intercommunication, and the modernization of the pumping machinery. While the committee had every confidence in the deputy chief engineer, recently appointed, it was considered desirable to secure, for a limited period, the services of a water engineer of the highest distinction and experience.

Mr. F. G. Howard, chairman of the committee, said that it was the policy of the board to promote from within its own staff. At the moment they suffered from the complaint of youth. However highly qualified, their engineers lacked the long and varied experience which the position demanded. An immense amount of work was in prospect, involving expenditure of possibly £4,000,000. That could not be started without skilled advice. Lieutenant-Colonel Davidson was a high authority. At the end of five years the door would be reopened to promotion. If the salary was exceptional so were the circumstances. If the board were to engage consultants, the fees payable on £4,000,000 would be £100,000.

APPOINTMENT OPPOSED

Mr. J. Edwards moved the reference back of the report. He said that their late chief engineer, Mr. Silgco, received a maximum salary of £3,500. There were those who thought that too much, even for an engineer of his undoubted eminence. Now it was being proposed to make an appointment—he said no word against the capacity and standing of Lieutenant-Colonel Davidson—at a salary of £5,000, or £1,500 more than was considered ample for their own engineer. That required a great deal of explanation. The chief engineer of the London County Council only received £3,000 a year.

Mr. W. Carter, in seconding, said that he was astounded at the audacity of the committee in bringing

RECENT ENGINEERING CONTRACTS

Messrs. The British Thomson-Houston Company, Limited, Crown House, Aldwych, London, W.C.2, have secured from the Southern Railway Company the contract for the supply of Mazda lamps for the twelve months ending August 31, 1934. Further, the General Post Office has renewed the contract for the supply of Mazda lamps for a period of twelve months.

Messrs. Brooke Marine Motors, Limited, Adrian Works, Lowestoft, have received an order for the construction of a Diesel engine for tug Messrs. Lobitos Oilfields, Limited, Peru. The vessel is to be 45 ft. long, and have a beam of 11 ft. The machinery comprises a Diesel engine developing 80 h.p., at 800 r.p.m.

Messrs. Atlas Diesel Company, Limited, New Oxford House, Hart Street, London, W.C.1, have received an order from Messrs. W. T. Lamb and Sons, Limited, Shoe-lane, E.C.4, for a British Polar Diesel engine developing 725 h.p. at 250 r.p.m. This will be direct-coupled to an Asea 500-kW, 400-volt, alternator for supplying power and light to Messrs. Lamb's new brick works at Bletchley. Another recent order comprises four 450-h.p. engines for driving generators on a new vessel building at Messrs. Harland and Wolff's yard at Belfast for Messrs. Shaw, Savill and Albion Company, Limited—Engineering.

forward such a proposal at such short notice.

Mr. H. Berry said that the position should be thrown open to competition. It was not in accord with the best principles of public life that a man, retiring at 60 and in receipt of a pension, should be appointed.

The appointment was made by 31 votes to five.

It was reported that Sir Alexander Houston, Director of Water Examinations, had tendered his resignation as from the end of the present year.

The Board, in accepting the resignation, placed on record its high appreciation of Sir Alexander Houston's services during the past 28 years.

COLONEL DAVIDSON'S CAREER

Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. Davidson was educated at Liverpool University and has been with the Liverpool Corporation since 1893. He became chief engineer in 1914, and has taken a prominent part in the development of the great waterworks at Vyrwry, in North Wales, from which Liverpool draws its chief supply of water.

After serving for many years as an officer in the 10th Battalion, The King's Regiment (Liverpool), better known as the "Liverpool Scottish," he went to France in 1914 as second in command of the battalion, and which he afterwards commanded.

In recognition of his War services he was awarded the O.M.G. and mentioned in dispatches.

ENGINEERING AND BUILDINGWOMAN MASTERS THE MACHINE*Crashed Into Engineering

In the general process of gate-crashing male preserves, women have made giant strides in the most unlikely of all professions—engineering.

Conservative masculinity, taunting women with complete inability to comprehend even the most elementary of gadgets, is disturbed; the notion of Eve among the machines still seems odd to him. Yet, actually women broke into engineering during the war and, after it, consolidated their position with astonishing speed and admirable enterprise.

Among the thousands who learned something of machines during the war, the vast majority returned to civil life without any desire to know more. But one little group of girls discovered that engineering is an interesting job and decided for it as a professional career.

The result was a small co-partnership company. Miss Anne Ashberry was its leading spirit. They had very little capital, but unlimited enthusiasm.

Their first workshop was in a Midland town. It was a disused bell-factory that housed a horse and odd chickens when they took over. These tenants were ejected and the girl-engineers set about converting the place. They worked by candlelight, in overalls and breeches.

After two years they moved to Brixton and there Atalanta, Ltd., still carries on the business of contracting engineers. There are no men in that firm.

Mrs. L. A. Willson started life as a half-timer—thirty hours a week for eighteen pence. She became a full-timer and drew three half crowns a week. Meanwhile the machines among which her childhood was being spent, got hold of her.

She married an engineer, became an engineer herself. Today, she is a director of Smith, Barker and Wills, machine tool makers, of Halifax.

Miss Violet Drummond walked into a Dundee shipyard and said she wanted to sign on. As what? she was asked. As a hand, she replied. The thing was unheard of, but she was taken on. She stayed there six years until her breeches ceased to cause comment.

To what end? To become a ship's engineer, no less. Miss Drummond signed on as tenth engineer and went to sea. Her lot lay far below deck where the giant machines turn over unceasingly in majestic rhythm.

To-day, Miss Drummond is a Member of the Institute of Marine Engineers. She does it because she likes it. There is nothing like a ship's engine room, she says.

Just the same, in an evening frock she is as feminine as the next girl. Even her hands are well kept.

Twenty odd years ago the mother of four children lost her husband. She was faced with the problem of supporting her family. She turned to engineering.

To-day, 28 years after opening shop with a capital of £7 10s.

Mrs. E. N. Mason is head of a Colchester engineering firm specialising in engineer's photographic equipment and drawing office materials. She employs two hundred workers.

As one would expect, the aviation side of engineering has not escaped the eye of the woman engineer. This is a new sphere and one that must inevitably expand.

Miss E. J. Munts elected for this branch of work. She took a job as a fabric hand with the De Havilland aircraft people, and from that humble beginning worked her way through the shops, ending in the engine-testing department.

From the shops was but a step to the air. Miss Munts switched from record-breaking ambitions to the technical side after taking her pilot's "ticket." To-day she is flying as an aerial photographer, photographing the mouth of the Mersey for silage for the Mersey Dock authorities.

For the highest ranks of the profession a woman needs more than average mathematical ability. In the view of Lady Parsons, a former president of the Women's Engineering Society, the best route is by way of a honours degree in mathematics from a university. After that comes the practical work.

But the engineering institutions slowly opened their doors to the women and the results go to show that Eve, as engineer, can take her place beside the men with rather more than passing credit.

Take, for example, the case of Miss Verena Holmes. After her name she can put B.Sc., A.M.I. Mech. En., M.I. Loco. En., M. Inst. Met., A.M.I. Mar. E. Miss Holmes was the first woman to become a marine engineer, and her real love is steam engines.

She was patented many inventions—among others, a poppet valve for locomotives and an apparatus that plays an important part in the curing of consumption. She knows as much about Diesels as any male engineer ever will.

Engineer is Miss Caroline Haslett, general secretary of the Women's Engineering Society. For five years she ran the large staff of a firm of boiler-makers.

To-day she edits two technical journals among other activities. Women engineers are doing an extraordinarily wide range of work. One was employed on the building of the great Sydney Bridge; one holds the post of metallurgist to the Lanston Monotype Co.; another runs an iron foundry in the Midlands; yet another runs a large general engineering business in Exeter.

There are several methods of approach for the girl ambitious to enter this profession. In London the Borough Polytechnic has a course for women, and it is a very popular one.

East London College (University of London) is open to any girl who aspires to the B.Sc. (Eng.), a three-year course. The Northampton Polytechnic has been running a women's course for years. It is one that covers mathematics, engineering, magnetism and electricity, drawing and working in iron and steel.

UNDERGROUND HYDRAULIC MINING FOR GOLDSystem That May Revolutionize Present Theories

Centerville.—While many of the world's foremost mining engineers shake their heads dubiously, W. L. Leland is directing operations at the California Treasure Box gold mine which may revolutionize all previously conceived mining theories.

Backed by a lifetime of gold hunting and engineering, Leland is preparing to start hydraulic operations miles underground to tap a hitherto unresizable source of the precious yellow metal.

Grimy, perspiring miners swing picks monotonously and unceasingly in a tunnel under and paralleling the widely known Mammoth Channel, where Butte creek twists and tumbles through rugged hills 15 miles east of Chico.

Already, they have hewed through more than three-fourths of a mile of stubborn lava. As they advance toward Mammoth Channel, an ancient buried river channel considered as large as the vast Columbia river bed, the workers blast away boulders and erect timbers.

The world proceeds despite the warning of experts who claim underground, by hydraulic mining through ground that requires time being impossible.

Located approximately 135 feet below Mammoth Channel, the tunnel eventually will be upraised into that channel buried unknown centuries ago when tons of lava seared scorching paths down mountain sides and filled the stream bed.

A reservoir has been constructed at the tunnel portal. From there water will be piped to the old channel and released—with terrific force—against walls of the underground gorge, which previously have been blasted.

A specially constructed steel flume will carry the gravel and water out of the tunnel. Leland expects to run as high as 3000 carloads per day through the flume.

HIG EXPENDITURE

Machinery and present operations have cost Leland and his associates thousands of dollars, but he is confident expenditures will be more than justified. Butte creek is the only stream which has been able to cut through the lava and reach this underground channel and immense wealth has been taken from its sands and gravels.

Leland believes most of the gold found in Butte creek country has

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENTS IN LANCASHIRE

The scheme entered upon some time ago by Messrs. The Lancashire Steel Corporation Limited, to extend and modernise their Partington works upon such a scale as to make them among the finest of their kind in the world, is being expedited, and already several new departments and other developments aiming at increased efficiency and decreased production costs, have been completed and put into operation. Further work is proceeding, including the erection of new steel furnaces and other plant. Messrs. Platt Brothers and Company, Limited, Oldham, who in the past have supplied cotton manufacturing machinery to many leading cotton firms in North China, are, it is stated, to supply most of the plant and equipment for new Government mills which are being erected in Kwantung. An important contract, stated to be valued at approximately £250,000, has been secured by Messrs. Pearson and Knowles Engineering Company, Limited, Warrington, who undertake the structural-steelwork programmes of Messrs. The Lancashire Steel Corporation Limited, of which it is one of the constituent firms. The

LORD MOYNE BUYS CHANNEL STEAMERConversion To Pleasure Yacht

Lord Moyne has purchased the cross-channel steamer Dieppe, which was jointly owned by the Southern Railway Company and the French State Railways, to replace his yacht Roussalka, which was lost off the Irish coast. The Dieppe, a sister ship to the Roussalka, has been engaged on the Newhaven-Dieppe service. Work on her conversion to a pleasure yacht will begin shortly. The Dieppe is of 1,425 tons gross, is 273 feet long, and is propelled by triple screws driven by three steam turbines. The wrecked Roussalka was also formerly on the Newhaven-Dieppe service under the name of Brighthelm.

come from the channel he seeks to tap, but at a higher price. He believes his operations will carry him into virgin gold-bearing sands.

Other men connected with this unique attempt to wrest wealth from another of nature's jealously guarded treasure chests include I. N. Dally, Seattle, who has leased an option to mine the upper two

THE LUNG-HAI RAILWAY

Nanking, Oct. 24.—Mr. Sun Mou, Chief Engineer for the Tungkwang-Sian Section of the Lung-Hai Railway, in an interview yesterday, stated that the first half of the section from Tungkwang to Weinan is to be completed by the end of this year. The roadbed has been paved and materials are being awaited for the laying of the tracks. Tenders are now being invited for construction work on the other half from Weinan to Sian, he added.—Kuo Min.

Peiping, Oct. 25.—The north-western provinces of Suiyuan and Sinkiang are now linked by a motor-highway, and a long-distance omnibus service is being operated between Kueihua and Tihua, provincial capitals respectively of Suiyuan and Sinkiang.—Kuo Min.

Changsha, Oct. 25.—In a telegram to the National Economic Council, the Hunan Provincial Government requests that a sum of $750,000 be remitted to Hunan immediately for the construction of highways.—Kuo Min.

It will provide work for the Warrington firm for nearly twelve months, and also, to some extent, to the Partington steelworks of the Corporation.—Engineering.

Mingling Of East And West: Old And New

GOVERNMENTS ENLIGHTENED POLICY

Macao, with its quiet and rest, has no rival in South China. The climatic conditions and the admirably clean state of the Colony recommend it as a health resort. The natural beauties of Macao, her excellent sanitary conditions, the benignity of her climate, and the assurances of public order are important factors that contribute so greatly to visits often made by foreign travellers. The number of visitors, which may be said to be increasing, are perhaps greatest during the months of winter when Turf meetings take place. The race-course comprises an extensive plot of land. The track itself is one mile round, from where the eye may rest upon and enjoy an interesting sea-scene as a background.

The islands of Taipa and Colo-wan, which also form a part of the colony of Macao, are receiving special attention by reason of their conditions perfectly suited to the establishment of sanatoriums, the contributions from which should tend greatly to still further assist worthy Macao institutions in their good work, educational bodies, and charity organisations, themselves doing excellent work in the Colony. Macao has excellent modern roads and avenues, many converging towards the hinterland—towards the new Chinese highway, with the flattering hope it offers to its port, to bring, along hundreds of miles, great quantities of raw material of exceeding value, of manufactures, of food products from the fertile and wealthy districts of Chung Shan, Shun Tak and Fatsan.

Seen from the roads or from any of the forts crowning the several low hills, Macao is extremely picturesque. The town itself has several places of interest. The Gardens and Grotto of Camoes, once the resort of the celebrated Portuguese poet Camoes, are worth seeing, as also is the noble facade of the ancient Jesuit church of San Paulo, burnt in 1835, and the Avenida Vasco da Gama. Pleasant excursions can be made to the Hot Springs of Yo-mak, about sixteen miles from Macao, accessible by steam launch. In winter, snipe are to be found in the neighbourhood and afford good sport. Owing to its being open to the south-west breezes and to the quietude always prevailing, Macao has become a frequent retreat of invalids and business men from Hong Kong and other neighbouring ports and there are several good modern hotels. The distance from Macao to Hong Kong is 40 miles and to Canton 88 miles. Although the area of the Colony does not exceed six square miles, there are three hospitals, two orphanages, two poor houses, for the aged poor and for indigent children, two leper asylums, a lyceum college and a large number of primary schools. There are also public clinics, life-saving organisations, and fire stations all supplied with modern equipment. AN HONOURED ENGLISHMAN. A name revered and honoured in the history of Macao is that of Dr. Robert Morrison—the pioneer Protestant missionary to the Chinese, whose first arrival in the Colony as far back as 1807 marked an epoch in the record of Western impact on Chinese civilisation. He wrote many important works, and as a Chinese scholar became renowned. A dispensary opened in the Colony for the relief of the poorer Chinese needing medical assistance received his earnest support, and was at the outset promoted under his auspices. The Chinese Protestant Church in Macao stands as a memorial to Morrison's first convert, who was baptised in a stream issuing from the hill-side, not far distant from the site of the building. Dr. Morrison died in 1834, and his tomb is in the Protestant cemetery at Macao, beside those of his first wife and of his son, John Robert Morrison.

To those who spend the major portion of the year in the city, Macao makes a special appeal, and specially in the case of residents of Hong Kong and travellers arriving at that port. And in this connection, the steamers of the Hong Kong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Company, Limited, offer the best means of getting there. The Company maintain a regular service between Macao and Hong Kong and, in normal times there is a regular service also between those whose declared intention it is to visit Macao, therefore, should make this known at the offices of the Hong Kong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Company, Limited, or Messrs. Thos. Cook & Son, Hong Kong, where all the necessary information will be gladly given and the best possible arrangements made for what cannot fail to prove an enjoyable and healthful trip.

From a climatic point of view, Macao enjoys what may be termed exceptionally cool summers, with refreshing breezes, when most places on the South China coast are at their hottest. Again, there is sunshine practically throughout the colder seasons, when other China coast ports are wrapped in damp mist. Of the principal places of interest, mention should be made of Government House, the Paoan Houses or Gambling Dens, the Cathedral, the Fort de Cero, the Club, San Domingo's Church, the Leal Senado, Flora, (the Governor's summer residence), Camoes' Gardens and Grotto, the Military Club, Ruins of San Paulo Cathedral, the Kun-Yam Temple, the Barra Temple, the Mongha Temple, the Fish Market, St. Joseph's College, the Praia Grande, the Chinese Market, the Guia Lighthouse, the Supreme Court and the San Francisco Gardens.

OLD AND NEW Macao is a city of marked contrasts, where the picturesque quaintness of a vanished age is mingled with the enterprise of modern times; where the customs and usages of ancient Portugal and modern China, characteristic of the old colony and new eras of civilisation, harmoniously co-exist; where modern business houses and handsome private residences rise side by side with grey old churches, sombre convents and monasteries. Crumbling streets of white and grey houses with various coloured tiles and broad squares shaded by oleanders, with feathery bamboo overhanging stone fountains, recall the palmy days of medieval Portugal, the exotic colouring of the picture being emphasised by the contrasting character of the Chinese background.

From a scenic point of view, Macao has much to offer. One of the prettiest drives is along the Praia Grande, past the fine residence of the Governor of the Colony, the imposing public buildings and attractive private residences. The route continues past the Military Club and the barracks and along a splendid road three miles in length, with the Military Hospital, the Lighthouse, and various forts on the left hand, and the sea on the other, terminating in a fine sandy stretch of beach at the Fort de Cero. The Praia Grande, a lovely marine esplanade, is occupied by handsome Government offices and private residences, follows the curving coastline, with its fine trees giving shelter from the strong sea-breezes, and forms a delightful promenade. The sunsets on this coast are extraordinarily fine, and nowhere else can they be seen than from this esplanade. The photographer and photographic artist will find much material to his liking in Macao.

GOVERNMENT POLICY The policy of the Government of Macao is to facilitate the establishment of new industries, offering them every assurance and protection and placing at the disposal of industrialists the extensive area reclaimed from the sea, for periods ranging from one to seventy-five years, renewable at the end of the lease on terms mutually agreeable.

It is also the object of the Portuguese Government of Macao to give every protection to capital that comes to Macao for employment, to assist that capital to find outlets that can in turn benefit the industries and trade of the Colony. And so that this object might be attained, a Bureau of Economic Research (Inspeccao dos Servicos Economicos) has been established as an official undertaking to assist industries and trade, external as well as local, for the development of the interests of the Portuguese in the Far East. This Bureau furnishes all information of an economic-commercial character, and conducts a Publicity and Tourist Service.

On these lines, in conformity with their means, the Portuguese in collaboration with the Chinese have been working and will continue to work for the development of this Colony and the maintenance of unity and friendship between the two peoples that have met on such amicable terms in Macao.

MACAO'S RIDING SCHOOL

Successful Venture by Russian Ex-Officer

A riding school has been established in Macao and its director is the well-known riding teacher, Lt. Col. D. G. Kozikis, formerly of the Imperial Russian Army.

Quite recently Mr. Kozikis established a similar school in Canton where it achieved good results. In a short time, 250 persons, both Europeans and Chinese learned to ride. Quite a number of the Consular Body also took the course.

Mr. Kozikis distinguished himself in the World War and was decorated by the Imperial Government. On one occasion he rode 2,000 kilometers from the borders of the Caspian Sea to Omsk in Siberia, crossing deserts and mountains.

Mr. Richard Boyce, consul in Barcelona, will go to Yokohama to succeed Mr. Charles Devault who is transferred to Paris.

Mr. Oliver Chamberlain, consul at Harbin, is to be stationed at Hankow.—United Press.

EINSTEIN AT ALBERT HALL

Tumultuous Welcome: "How Can We Save Europe?"

Ten thousand people, acclaimed Professor Einstein at the Royal Albert Hall last night at a meeting organised by the German Refugee Assistance Fund, which comprises the Academic Assistance Council, the International Students' Service, the Society of Friends (German Committee), Committee, and the Refugee Professionals' Committee.

Sir Austen Chamberlain and Sir James Jeans were among the speakers.

The appearance on the platform of Professor Einstein with the chairman, Lord Rutherford (President of the Academic Assistance Council), was the signal for a remarkable burst of cheering.

Lord Rutherford, with upraised hand, and with a sweeping gesture towards Professor Einstein, who was sitting by his side, said, "Ladies and gentlemen, my old friend and colleague, Professor Einstein."

The entire assembly rose, and tumultuous applause again broke out and lasted for almost a minute. Meanwhile, Professor Einstein, the only seated man in the hall, gazed around him with a rather bewildered expression. The applause died down, only to break out afresh as the Professor took his stand before the microphone. It was some time before he could begin to speak.

The subject of the Professor's address was "Science and Civilization," and he prefaced it with an expression of his deep gratitude "as a man, as a good European, and as a Jew."

TOLERANCE AND JUSTICE

"You have shown," Professor Einstein said, "that you, and the British people have remained faithful to the traditions of tolerance and justice which for centuries you have upheld with pride."

"Let us hope that a historian, delivering judgment in some future period when Europe is politically and economically united, will be able to say that in our day the liberty and honour of this Continent was saved by its Western nations, which stood fast in hard times against the temptations of hatred and oppression, and the Western Europe defended successfully the liberty of the individual, which has brought us every advance of knowledge and invention—liberty without which life to a self-respecting man is not worth living."

"It cannot be my task to-day to act as judge of the conduct of a nation which for many years

NOVELIST & NEWSPAPER

Mr. Compton, Mackenzie's Damages For Libel

A settlement was announced in the King's Bench Division before Mr. Justice Horridge of a libel action by Compton Mackenzie, the author, against Messrs. Bennett Coleman and Company, Limited, proprietors of the "Times of India."

Sir Albion Richardson, K.C., who appeared for Mr. Mackenzie, intimated that it was in respect of Mr. Mackenzie's election as Lord Rector of Glasgow University in 1931 that the article complained of was published by the defendants. The article read:

"Mr. Compton Mackenzie has always shown a tendency towards sensationalism. An ardent Scottish Nationalist, he was elected Lord Rector of Glasgow University last year, and he created a considerable stir by his impropriety in delivering a 'call to Scottish youth' in his Rectorial address."

He then proceeded, much to the consternation of the University authorities, to exercise his right to preside personally at meetings of the University Court."

Sir Albion, continuing, said as soon as the attention of the defendants was called to the article, they admitted that the imputations upon Mr. Mackenzie were unfounded; they expressed their regret and agreed to pay to Mr. Mackenzie an acceptable sum as damages and the costs of the action.

"SWEEPINGS"

Fine Acting by Lionel Barrymore

Lionel Barrymore, starring at the King's Theatre next Sunday in "RKO-Radio Pictures" "Sweepings," a powerful, elaborately staged, epic of social, financial and family life, considers his characterization a timely warning to American parents.

The actor gives a striking portrayal of an ambitious father who makes millions for his children, only to find that they fail him under the spell of too much luxury.

"I hope my role will awaken parents to the danger in the all too common practice of pampering boys and girls," said the star.

"The inevitable effect of luxury, as is shown in this story, in boredom and an appetite for dissipation and thrills."

In support of the star are Gloria Stuart, Eric Linden and William Gargan who give excellent performances as his wayward children. Miss Stuart sells her birthright for a brief year of excitement, while the sons use the fruits of their father's toil to grease the skids down which they slide to sorrow.

Others in the cast are Alan Dinehart, Ninetta Sunderland, Gregory Ratoff, George Meeker, Lucien Littlefield and many other equally well-known players. John Cromwell directed.

The production presents a parade of lavish setting many famous play-places of Europe and America, the interior of gay gambling places of the nineties, and one mammoth setting depicting the ruins of Chicago after the great fire of 1871.

"FRA DIAVOLO"

Laurel and Hardy At The Queen's

"Fra Diavolo," now showing at the Queen's Theatre, is excellent entertainment, for apart from having the two famous comedians, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in the leading roles, the picture has almost everything that help to make a successful film—songs, comedy and music.

The story opens with the robbing of two adventurers (Laurel and Hardy) of their life savings by brigands. Peniless, they decide to become brigands themselves in order to seek revenge, and at the same time to get "easy money." Hardy pretends that he is Diavolo, the notorious bandit chief known throughout the country, and Laurel as his trusted henchman.

Eventually they meet the dangerous Diavolo himself (Dennis King), and from here the fun begins which continues till the end of the picture. They are captured, and Hardy is sentenced to be hanged with Laurel as his executioner.

Their attempts to escape, their blunders in trying to prevent Diavolo from robbing the lovely Lady Pamela (Thelma Todd), and their interference in a romantic liaison between a young officer and an innkeeper's daughter provoke much laughter.

The picture is produced on an elaborate scale with an unusual background. It can be claimed to be the funniest picture made by the famous comedians, and with this end in view, we strongly recommend it as a picture which should not be missed.

"THE PAST OF MARY HOLMES"

Story of Mother Love

Your emotions gets a terrific battering from many intensely dramatic angles in "The Past of Mary Holmes" RKO-Radio picture now playing at the Central Theatre.

Here is a drama bound to give your heart a twist. It's fundamental. It analyzes the strange temperament and reveals the torn soul of a woman who has fallen from fame and glory—a woman who nourishes hatred for her son and then finds, when her testimony has acquitted him of murder, that she loves him.

Mary Holmes, known in the town as the Goose Woman, drinks and drinks to forget that she has lost her brilliant voice and no longer is the famous opera star whom royalty toasted and the world lauded.

Retired to an old shack in a Jersey suburb she is sunk in dirt and squalor, living in a dilapidated old house with her dog, her geese and grins.

There is a murder. Her son is accused, and she testifies against him without knowing it. Her latent mother love is aroused at last, but the court will not believe that she is not rushing, naturally, to the defense of her son when she declares her testimony is that she was once the breath of life to her.

Eric Linden and Helen MacKellar share acting honors, young Linden giving a poignant performance as the son, and Miss MacKellar performing marvels as the Goose Woman, first an ugly slattern and then a gorgeous beauty, and plays playing her role with skill. This is her first screen appearance after many years of saying "No" to offers. It is hoped that it will not be her last.

Supporting the cast are, Jean Arthur, "Skeets" Gallagher, Ivan Simpson, Clay Clement and J. Carol Nash.

"PADDY"

To Be Shown At The King's

Warner Baxter has never been better than in this latest picture, where he plays opposite Janet Gaynor in "Paddy" The next Best Thing. He fancies himself in love with her sister, but when he sees "Paddy" he is captivated by her. She sets out to hate him and not knowing it they end up by falling in love. This picture is definitely Janet Gaynor's and Warner Baxter's best, you remember "Daddy Long Legs" but this surpasses any thing they have yet played in.

For being in possession of 245 pounds of dutiable tobacco in the top floor of No. 245 Young Ching Street, Mongkok, Li Tak was fined $500 or four months' hard labour by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy.

"HOOK, LINE & SINKER"

At The Oriental Theatre

Not only is "Hook, Line and Sinker" will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, said to be the greatest Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey Comedy to date, but it is said to contain more varied and genuine entertainment than any film ever produced.

Much of its action takes place in the largest indoor set ever built, a rambling completely equipped hotel where the troupe spent six weeks, "shooting" 888 hilarious scenes.

For exterior scenes, the historic Bakersfield, California, country—a land of magnificent rugged beauty—was visited.

All Laughs

The story, constructed solely for laughing purposes, presents a laugh-a-second tale of a clash between big underworld mobs and high society fashionables. This necessitated using dramatic players such as Balf Harrold, Hollywood's most debonair villain; Natalie Moorhead, vampish beauty; George Marion, with 50 years' experience in acting, Hugh Herbert, well-known character actor, and six others equally as well known.

"MIDNIGHT MARY" Tale Of A New York Tenement Girl

The melodramatic career of a New York tenement girl who comes perilously close to the electric chair is depicted in "Midnight Mary," a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture scheduled as the next change at the Queen's Theatre.

The picture was filmed from an original story by Anita Loos and features Loretta Young, Ricardo Cortez, Franchot Tone, Andy Devine and Una Merkel.

The story centres on Mary Martin, a young girl who grows up in adverse circumstances and is finally induced to join a group of crooks who progress rapidly from petty larceny to robberies on the grand scale. She falls in love with a wealthy young attorney and tries desperately to start a new life on an honest footing. The gangster who has dominated her youth threatens to kill the man she loves and against her will, Mary Martin is forced back into the underworld.

AN EXCEPTIONAL CAST

The pivotal role is played by Loretta Young, one of the most popular of the screen's younger stars. Ricardo Cortez plays the gangster who forces her to become a crook, and the romantic phases of the plot are handled by Miss Young and Franchot Tone, the much talked about newcomer who received outstanding notice for his work opposite Joan Crawford in "To-day We Live." Andy Devine and Una Merkel insure the picture of numerous comedy moments, and the group of supporting players include Frank Conroy, Warren Hymer, Ivan Simpson, Harold Huber, Sandy Roth, Martha Sleeper, Charles Grapewin, Halliwell Hobbes and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

The story starts with the tensely dramatic moment in which a jury is deciding on the fate of Mary Martin. Did she, kill the gangster, and if so why? It is during this suspenseful interlude in which the jury deliberates that the past life of the girl is unraveled in a series of highlighted incidents.

William Wellman, who directed "Midnight Mary," is said to have filmed his story from an entirely different angle than the usual crook drama. Wellman has achieved a scoring reputation as a director of the raw side of humanity with his productions of "The Public Enemy" and "The Conquerors."

C.B.A. DANCE

Enjoyable Function in School Hall

The Central British Association, noted for their sporting abilities, especially hockey, held their first dance at the Central British School Hall last night. The hall was decorated with streamers and balloons and presented a very pleasing effect to the twenty to thirty couples who were dancing to the strains of Micky's Melody Makers. The band realizing that this was the opening of the C.B.A. social evenings, excelled themselves to the delight of those present and we can congratulate Mr. J. J. King the convenor on the excellent time had by all.

Among those present could be seen Miss Whitley, who graduated from the Hong Kong University with flying colours, a little while ago, in company with Miss B. Hirst who attended to the general refreshments, while Mr. Francis, a Hong Kong XI Hockey player, made an excellent bar convenor.

ECHOES OF 1859

30—How The Queen's Birthday Was Celebrated

(May 26, 1859)

The Queen's birthday was upon the whole celebrated right loyally. The ships in the harbour were decked up with all the splendour which bunting could possibly effect. There were five exceptions. A Manila craft—a Frenchman, lying close to the "Hoangho"—a Siamese vessel—and 2 American ships down to the Westward. On the other hand, some of the foreign merchant ships fired salutes. The American ship Norway fired a royal salute at noon, and again another at sunset.

There was a review of the Parade Ground after the sun went down, which went off in a dashing manner. The Royals looked extremely well, every mother's son having a pith hat with a white cover. Colonel Caine appeared as Acting-Governor. He stood alone with the man who held the flag, not an aide, nor an orderly nor a soul near him. Surely a staff of some kind might have been arranged, and appearances kept up. We thought it looked very bad. As usual in this Colony there was not a red coat mounted. The concourse of spectators was great and the sight rather imposing.

In the evening, there were some capital fire works, purchased by public subscription. They were very good indeed, especially the pagodas. There was too much wind, to permit of full justice being done to them.

NEWS OF THE DAY

On the 18th instant about 6 o'clock p.m., a coolie was engaged to work on board a boat off Bonham Strand. No sooner on board than he was seized, bound and stowed away below, where were two more men in the same condition as himself who had been deluded on board in the same manner. They were carried to Macao. The man giving this information at the Police Station, escaped.

A Court Martial was held yesterday on board H.M.S. Cambrian to try Mr. D'Arcy, the second Master of the gunboat "Bustard," for disobedience of orders of his Commander. He was severely reprimanded and sentenced to lose two years' time.

At the Supreme Court yesterday, a Chinese who was charged with being concerned in the murders on board the Heather Bell, was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged.

VALUABLE COLLECTION OF NETSUKE

Interesting Exhibition at Komor & Komor's

A very fine collection of Japanese Curios is being shown in Hong Kong by Messrs. Komor and Komor of York Building. The collection is valued at approximately $12,000 and it is an education to study the various pieces, one of the best of which is the Netsuke.

A Netsuke is a pendant or toggle fastened at the end of a cord attached to the purse, tobacco pouch, pipe case, medicine or seal case, snuff or water bottle, or small gourd, slung from the girdle. It was used by all classes, and the lower the social rank the more general was its use.

It is very difficult to gauge when Netsuke came into use, but there is little doubt that it was during the Tencho period (1573-1592). When the carrying of tobacco-pouches became general, that is, during the Horeki period (1781-1789), the practice of smoking pipes was very common, especially amongst the commercial classes. The style and value of the Netsuke was according to the position in life and the means of the wearer, and the making of Netsuke gave occupation to carvers of distinction, who strove hard to produce articles of artistic value. But with the introduction of the cigarette, the use of the tobacco pouch became unknown and the fashion of wearing Netsuke disappeared completely.

MATERIAL AND SHAPE OF NETSUKE
The use of the seal came in long before Netsuke, and was a Chinese Custom introduced into Japan from China or Korea. The existence of so many specimens goes to prove that the Netsuke copied from To-bori were carved mostly in ivory, which was not a product of the country. According to very old records the ivory used in Japan weighed about 5 lbs. and came from Annam, was of a whitish-blue colour and possessed a very fine grain. The most common material, however, used for carving Netsuke was wood. The Netsuke used during the latter part of the Tokugawa period were made of wood and ivory, but prior to that other materials had been used, such as common forms of stone, stag and animal horns, shells, coral, jade, agate, marble, amber etc. Carved wood Netsuke are known to have been lacquered and a brief history of the art of lacquer will enable the reader to understand something of the progress made in this particular branch of industry. Netsuke made of ivory, horn, shell, nuts and tortoiseshell were all decorated with designs in lacquer.

Netsuke are known to have been made of porcelain also, but only a very few have survived to this day.

It is too long to go into every type of Netsuke, but every god, the good and evil spirits, animals, the Zodiac, the Months, Poetry and Proverbs, feats of strength, etc., have a special Netsuke dedicated to them. Messrs. Komor and Komor will be only too pleased to explain the various designs and histories of the Netsuke that they have in their collection to those interested in this type of antiques.

CHEAPER RENTS.

Thanks to considerable over-building on the part of property owners, there are now so many Chinese tenement houses lying vacant in all parts of the Colony, but particularly at Wanchai, that ridiculously low rentals are being asked in some cases. There has been a general reduction in rents recently and further cuts will be necessary if some of the landlords are to retain their tenants. Upon investigation, I learned that houses which have been built at considerable cost, and are in every way desirable, are the worst sufferers, as the rent charged on these is as much as twice that wanted for slum houses of similar size. The drop in rent, however, is all to the good, as compared with Canton and Macao, and even with Kowloon, house rent on the Island of Hongkong is very high.

SLUMP IN PROPERTY.

Without wishing in any way to create a scare, there is every reason to think that there will be a slump in the value of property very soon. In conversation with a property owner this week, I understood that there has been a gradual decline in the price of property and further drops are indicated. The closing down of "night life" in West Point has reduced values in that area considerably, and the over-building in other parts of the Colony will not help matters. At the height of the building boom some ten years ago, owners fell over each other buying up all the property that was offered for sale and now the swing of the pendulum is definitely against house owners, especially those who have built Chinese tenement houses on their land.

THE FANLING RACES.

The "Daily Press" was privileged to print the exclusive report of the decision arrived at by the Fanling Hunt Club to abandon flat racing for the forthcoming season. This decision is the outcome, I understand, of considerable controversy between the leading lights of the Fanling Club, and of a prominent sporting institution in Hongkong. Opinions were sharply divided and the point of view of the Fanling Hunt Club prevailed in the end.

DECISION DEPLORED.

The decision is a sad one, especially as the meetings at Kwai Tsing were becoming more and more popular each year. It is perhaps not generally known that in June 1932, an appeal was sent out to members of the Club asking for donations of not less than $10. The response to that appeal was that a sum of nearly $3,500 was received and the Hongkong Jockey Club had generously agreed to contribute dollar for dollar the amount donated by the members. That appeal was made in the interests of the Club and was repeated on June 1, this

SUGGESTION FOR ANALYSTS

To Give More Detailed Reports

The case in which a Chinese named Li Tat-sang was charged with possession of 6.4 taels of non-Government opium, and more than one tael of opium dross was brought to a conclusion before Mr. W. Schaefer at Central Magistracy yesterday when he was discharged on the first count and fined $140 on the second.

It will be recalled that the defendant in this case was originally charged together with a Japanese with trafficking in opium, but the charges against them were withdrawn, and only the two charges of possession were proceeded with against defendant.

Mr. D. L. Sturtevant, for the defence criticised the method of issuing certificates, and said that the prosecution was not as satisfactory as it might have been, and that the certificate did not disclose what ought to have been known, and that there being a doubt the defendant should be given the benefit of it.

The judgment was as follows:—"In this case the first charge against the defendant is not based on the usual Analyst's certificate as the document handed in relating to the alleged non-Government opium is not a certificate as it is unsigned."

The case therefore rests upon the Monopoly Analyst's evidence. According to this the opium was brought to him in two containers, one in a jar, and the other a mixing bowl. The Monopoly Analyst emptied both into a third container, mixed the stuff up, analysed ten grammes of it with some Kamshan as a control, and declares that 75 per cent. to 85 per cent. is Kamshan Government opium. On this I am asked to declare that the whole 6.4 taels are non-Government opium, and that the defendant is guilty because the Imports and Exports Department take the view that if Government opium is adulterated it becomes and can truthfully be described as non-Government opium.

"I am entirely unable to accept this view. I consider that 'non-Government opium' can only be opium or matter containing opium that was not prepared by Hongkong or Singapore for sale to the public, but the question of the face value of the acceptability of the certificate does not here arise, and that there is in fact no evidence that defendant had in his possession on September 21 any opium prepared elsewhere than in Hongkong or Singapore."

There is not law against adulterating Government opium, and in this case there is no suggestion that the opium in question was for sale. It may even be that the adulteration of most of the 6.4 taels was caused directly by the Monopoly Analyst himself mixing the contents of the pots, and that had he analysed each pot separately the result would have been different. I have no option but to discharge defendant on the first charge, and suggest that for the protection of the public the analyst should in similar cases state more exactly what it is that he finds in the materials sent him for analysis.

"On the second charge, it is clear that defendant had possession of the dross by his servant I am not satisfied with his statement that he had no idea what his servant did with it, still less with what I feel certain is his simulated ignorance of the use of the one tael Sheung Hei tin. Such assertions lessen the weight of the rest of his evidence, nor do I like his attempt to make a lad of 15 take the blame of the possession of the dross. He is convicted on this charge, and fined $140."

MODERN MISS CHINA

Her Virtues and Vices Debated

PATIENT GUSELDA WINS

That the modernity of a Chinese girl can be measured by the thickness of her powder and rouge, and by the length of the slit of her skirt, was one of the witty observations made at an informal debate held at the University Club on Thursday night.

The debate was preceded by a dinner at which were present lawyers, doctors, engineers and a host of business men. There was also a large attendance of the fair sex.

The subject for discussion was the burning one of the hour; the resolution before the house being, "That the old-fashioned Chinese girl makes a better wife than her modern sister." Two members of the "Y's" Men's Club led the affirmative while two speakers from the University Graduates' Association opposed.

Those for the old fashioned girl were mercurial in their attack on the modern girl. They described her as an irresponsible, pleasure-seeking, expensive toy, whose attractions vanished when she was called upon to face the stern realities of life. She would then be revealed as utterly helpless. Such a girl could not make a good wife.

The modern girl moreover was described as an unsound proposition for a wife as she was a very expensive proposition. To be modern one was expected to be up-to-date in one's attire, one's knowledge of every day affairs, news as well as the gossip, one had to attend all the latest shows, dances, parties, to keep late hours and so forth. It was argued therefore that the modern girl could not make a good wife.

Moreover, it was said against the modern girl that she knew every other man in the street, a fact which would lead to the husband's jealousy after marriage. One speaker went so far as to say that the local divorce laws were introduced because of the modern girl.

So Attractive, that Concubines are Unnecessary

On behalf the modern maid, it was argued that she was a social asset to her husband and often enough, an up-to-date ambitious wife had urged her husband to success.

As regards her inability to do household work, it was argued that servants could nowadays do all kinds of work and there was really no need for a modern woman to do any work commonly known as "household drudgery."

That the modern girl was the outcome of emancipated womanhood, was another argument brought forward. The modern Miss China was compared to the maiden with bound feet and limited vision. Her attractiveness and companionship rendered concubines unnecessary.

A Bit of an Antique

Against the old fashioned girl it was argued that she was a bit of an antique, and an anchor who prevented the husband's progress, as she was not able to share the interests of her husband's friends. She was a good servant in the house, but afforded her husband nothing in the way of companionship or even intelligent conversation. She was a thing of the past and must be discarded. Modern men must have modern wives and the old fashioned girl was entirely out of place as a wife in this modern age.

Those defending the old-fashioned girl, however, made her out as a patient, steady, painstaking person, who devoted her time and attention to the joys and comforts of her home and family. She was neither too daring nor too ambitious and with her, life was something more real and more sincere than a round of all the pleasure places in town.

On a vote being taken, the modern girl was beaten by the old-fashioned. Twenty-six persons were for the old-fashioned while fifteen were for the modern. A number of ladies did not vote, while quite a few men (probably married) also judiciously abstained from showing their hands on the call of the chairman.

THE S.S. CHITRAL

Returns With Many Local Residents

An this time of the year every P. and O. liner arrives in Hongkong with a large number of local people on board, returning from leave in England. The arrival of the steamship Chitral yesterday proved no exception to this rule for her passenger list consisted largely of persons destined for the Colony.

The Chitral had a very stormy voyage from Singapore, and a typhoon causing her to double back on her course and slow down to a speed of not more than eight knots. Despite the roughness of the sea the Hongkong passengers in the main proved themselves admirable sailors, and when interviewed this morning the captain of the ship seemed quite proud of the way his passengers had withstood the storm.

Among those greeted here was Mr. Frank Superintendent of Prisons, who has been in England combining business and pleasure. Mr. Frank studied prison administration during his sojourn in Europe and paid visits to many of the large penal institutions. Mr. A. Beck, the interport cricketer was also noticed among the passengers, as was Mr. Brown, of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, Shanghai, Mr. R. SWATOW NOTES

Shipments by Japanese Steamers

BOYCOTT TO END?

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Swatow, October 30. According to the latest developments it would appear that the long anti-Japanese boycott is going to end very soon.

This first became known this afternoon when a few shipments of Chinese merchandise were made by the Japanese steamship "Hozan Maru" for Formosa direct instead of being forwarded, as hitherto, to the O.S.K. steamers which will again pass through this port. Enquiry at the local O.S.K. office confirmed the news and I have personally seen lighters alongside the "Hozan Maru" to-day for the first time since the boycott of everything Japanese was declared. There was a rumour that the abandonment of the boycott takes effect to-day by orders of the mayor of Swatow, but this I have not yet verified. As no interference has occurred on the part of the Seamen's Union and other associations, it can only be inferred that before long the boycott question will become a thing of the past. The prospects of a normal situation are no less welcomed by the Chinese merchants than by the Japanese themselves. On the other hand, the National Salvation Association may not be pleased with the news, as it will be dissolved and with it goes much of the personal benefit to the executives and "inspectors."

In the various shops and stores Japanese goods are being openly jettisoned, the fact that the boycott is virtually at an end.

K.C.C. ARMISTICE DAY DANCE

Interporters as Guests of Honour

Elaborate preparations are being made by the members of the Kowloon Cricket Club to make their annual Armistice Day dance one of the outstanding events in the organization's programme for this year. The proceeds of the entertainment will be donated to Earl Haig's Fund and the musicians, under the baton of Ronnie True, are giving their services free.

The members of the interport cricket teams will be the guests of honour, and Mr. George White will act as Master of Ceremonies. Great pains are being taken with the decoration of the ballroom and the special lighting effects which will be employed should lend a decided charm to the whole scene.

Real interest is being taken by the general public, a record attendance being expected.

The Daily Press.

HONG KONG, NOVEMBER 4, 1933.

PORTUGAL.

A brief cable from Lisbon recently announced that the Portuguese national budget had been successfully balanced, with a surplus equivalent to £750,000. The message went on to add: "Portugal is one of the few European countries to achieve a surplus and the finances of the Portuguese Colonies are also in a satisfactory state."

Week by week in our Macao Supplement we have published news of Portugal, and her Colonies. Those who have read this information cannot have failed to be struck with the significance of Portugal's happy state in comparison with the rest of the world. Under two men of exceptional ability and integrity, General Carmona, the President, and Dr. Antonio Salazar, the Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, the country has enjoyed political stability and economic progress. Civic improvements in the capital, including a bridge over the Tagus, more efficient methods of agriculture, better education, and closer relations with the Colonies and the daughter nation of Brazil, are all expressions of the national revival.

What an ironic commentary is Portugal on the rest of the world, with its "brain trusts," political of Brazil, are all expressions of the America aptly calls "ballyhoo." In this quiet corner of Europe, bordered by the violence of Republican Spain, life goes on smoothly, and the citizens enjoy that certainty of work and their daily bread, which the peoples of the great Powers have lost. There are only two big towns, Lisbon and Oporto, and up-country, the peasants produce practically all they need, with a little over for the market, and ultimately the foreign trade, mainly wine and grain and cork, which is steadily enriching the whole nation.

A recent visitor to Portugal writing in one of the leading British periodicals, while impressed with the steadiness of the Government, and the natural beauty, describes the standard of living as low, though adequate to needs, illiteracy common, and a general tendency to indolence. But in Portugal, people are contented, and there are neither doles nor breadlines. There is a ration of work for all. No doubt to a Londoner, or a citizen of Chicago, life in a small Portuguese town or village would be intolerably dull. And yet in those places they enjoy the things that "advanced civilisation" has lost, and is seeking fitfully, and helplessly, to regain. "Back to the land," is the phrase, but what is happening on "the land"? The Middle West farmers, are in revolt, English agriculture lives precariously on luxury lines like breeding bloodstock and the "vast open spaces of the Dominions" beloved by political windbags, are still depressing, empty, despite centenary celebrations in big towns full of unemployed. We have in England as compensation, the glories of "Black Country," though unfortunately it is more of an economic liability than an asset, shipping and coal industries that have outgrown their markets, debt burdens, armaments burdens, political unrest and scares of another war. Germany, Japan, Britain and America are to a greater or less degree caught in this net of an unstable industrialism, which no one knows how to control. France and Italy are in better state because they still possess a peasantry, frugal and wedded to their holdings. But in Portugal life goes on quietly. There are corn and wine, fruits and meat, in the villages and little towns. There is time for peasant crafts and pastimes, and the art, lost in progressive countries, of a pleasant idleness when the task is done—and often the task can safely wait till tomorrow.

RECOVERY OF LOST TERRITORY

To Be Commenced Soon

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Canton, November 3. General Wang Teh Lin, Commander-in-Chief of the Volunteer Forces in Manchuria, and General Kung Hsin Yung, second in command, informed their local office that the military campaign for "the recovery of lost territory" will be shortly commenced.

Stating that he is in command of these armies and that more volunteers are joining his cause, General Wang Teh Lin made it known that his officers and men gave him a rousing welcome upon arrival at his headquarters "somewhere in East Kirtin" and that they are all enthusiastic to join him again in their patriotic pursuit.

Recent press reports gave prominence to the activities of the volunteers in Manchuria, and it is believed here that those are the men under General Wang Teh Lin, whose commandship of the volunteers was appointed by the South-west Political Council. It is officially stated that a volunteer representative is en route to Canton via Kwangsi to report on the conditions in the North-east.

Meanwhile, the whereabouts of Generals Fang Chen Wu and Chu Hung Chang are enveloped in mystery. They led their forces from Chharbar province to attack Peiping but were defeated and forced to escape with their lives. It is learned in well informed circles that they are heading for Canton, because they are appointees of the South-west Political Council.

Shanghai despatches say that the two defeated generals are willing to go abroad at the expense of the Nanking Government, whereas a conflicting message reported that they were captured or killed by government troops. Such reports are regarded incorrect in official circles here.

DIRECTORY AND CHRONICLE

Will those firms who have not yet returned their circulars for the 1934 edition and those whose names did not appear in last year's edition of the DIRECTORY AND CHRONICLE OF CHINA, JAPAN, ETC., please forward their entries to No. 11, Ice House Street, Hong Kong by November 4th.

CANTON AND NANKING Subject Of Much Discussion

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Canton, November 3. South Kiangsi which is garrisoned by the first Kwangtung army is very peaceful and the main force of the Communist armies are now shifted to Eastern Kiangsi in the vicinity of Lai Chuen. As A.D.C. of General Yu Hon Mow declared to press representatives to-day.

General Yu, who commands the first Kwangtung army in South Kiangsi, was too busy to-day to receive newspaper men, as he had a conference with General Chen Chi Tang, his superior officer, and later called on General Chiang Kwang Nai, Chairman of Fukien Provincial Government.

While General Yu returned here to make a report on the anti-Red campaign in Kiangsi, he is being consulted by high military and civilian leaders on other provincial and national problems. It was learned that the military relations were among the topics of discussion.

Definite decisions will have to be taken, as the leaders here take advantage of the presence of General Chiang Kwang Nai and Yu Han Mow in Canton at the same time. Kwangsi is represented in the discussion by Lieut. General Chang Yam Man, member of the South-west Political Council during the absence of General Li Chung Yen in Kwangsi.

Three essentials to human happiness—a sure supply of the primary needs of life, leisure, and contact with the beauty of nature. It is the loss of these things that has led up to the confusion of an unorganised, industrialised world, where no one is satisfied.

If Gossip We Must

BY "STELLA"

EARLY RISING!

Shall we start at the wrong end of the week and deal with the Chitral first? That bulks largest in my mind at the present moment, for a colossal yawn reminds me that I am still trying to make up on the sleep I lost yesterday morning. Alongside at half-past seven—WHAT an hour! Usually the F. & O. is more considerate, but I gather they wanted to leave again the same day, if possible, as the ship was already behind hand. Anyway, it meant a very early start; positively it was so cold and dark when the boy called me that I expected to have to break the ice in my bath. However, by the time I had dressed and swallowed a cup of tea I had rejected the idea of a fur coat in favour of a woolly jersey; imagine my horror, then, when I found people preparing to disembark in short sleeves and summery hats. It made me shiver to look at them!

FASHIONS FROM HOME

Perhaps the Chitral sailed a little too soon for the autumn fashions, for there were few really striking clothes on board, even among the just-back-from-leaves group. I liked Mrs. Sheldon's pale pink suit immensely. This must be one of the new colours, for Mrs. Murdoch and Mrs. C. C. Black were wearing pink too, of the same shade. I very much enjoyed looking very nice in green; and Mrs. Mackie, in a navy blue printed crepe de Chine, had just been met by her daughter Jean, neat and trim in brown suit and white felt hat.

Mrs. Danby, appeared at breakfast in dark brown, with a high-in-the-crown hat of the latest style. (They are back again after six months at home, ready to move into their new house above Deepwater Bay just as soon as ever it is finished. Another familiar face was Mr. E. W. Hamilton. Among new arrivals to the Colony was Mrs. Kemble, come out to spend the winter months with her son and daughter-in-law at Shek O. She wore a most attractive navy blue coat of a light-weight woollen material over a printed frock and a little straw hat to match.

THE PEAK CLUB

Navy blue seems to head the autumn honours list, with dark brown a close second. At the M.C.L. Sale of Work on Thursday afternoon almost the sole variations were Lady Peel, in a black suit with a small black hat and an ermine collar, Mrs. Tam Pearce, also in black, with the most fascinating black and white sleeves, Mrs. Little, in pink and a smartly checked coat, and Mrs. Gerrard, mother of these two attractive girls, in an almost royal blue. Oh, I nearly forgot the two most outstanding exceptions—Mrs. Dudley King, in a dashing scarlet, and Mrs. Murphy in soft blues and grays, both looking extremely smart and very fit after their holiday in Japan.

SOME OF THE STALLS

The Sale was a tremendous success. Mrs. Bentley, in charge of teas, said that everything had been eaten except one slice of cake and a bottle of milk. I know my children did their share!! And by the time the conjurers came on there was hardly a thing to be seen on any of the stalls. Mrs. Hall must have set off on her journey with a sign of relief and the pleasant satisfaction of a task well done. She was selling busily all the afternoon; so, too, was Mrs. Rowarth, I wonder who won that beautiful cot in her raffle? It was the one thing I really wanted, but I've never won a sweep yet, and I don't expect I ever will. As a beggar's crowd of children surrounded the toy stall kept by Mrs. Lander and Mrs. Buyers (the latter looking as being signees as only an American can), and the Misses Hancock were besieged in their "fish pond."

WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

To go back one day further—what jolly affairs these dances are at the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home. Many people make a point of going to every one, and I am not surprised. Thanks to Mrs. Tinson and the Chero. Band we all enjoy ourselves immensely. She is an indefatigable hostess, and has that happy knack of making you feel as if you are the one person she really wanted to see there—a most enviable characteristic. I thought she was looking particularly nice on Wednesday evening in a greeny-gold flowered taffeta. But what a number of multi-coloured floral frocks there were. Miss Masters and Miss Tuxford each wore one; so did Miss Fair, Miss Johnson and Miss Whitman. The other Miss Whitman had the most adorable dress with tiny red dots

Miss Betty Gerrard—A Navy Day Snapshot.

and frilly sleeves. And I thought Miss Cooper's clear yellow suited her dark beauty to perfection.

ON CONTRACT AND CONTRACTORS

Now the bathing season is practically over, bridge parties are starting again. People have come back from leave with a host of new ideas, and for a month or so there will be terrific discussions over the respective merits of the approach-forcing, the one-over-one, and all the other systems of bidding. It seems rather a pity we have no Contract Club here in Hongkong, where enthusiasts could be sure of getting a game on one or two days every week. Nowadays, the admission that you play Contract, may mean you are anything from the veriest beginner to a hardened expert, and the harassed hostess has to grade her tables as best she may. This means that for every really interesting game one gets one is likely to strike three or four bad ones; and a whole afternoon with a partner who forgets to raise you on three aces or fails to recognise your high-low signal is a bit 'ard! But at a club one can always cut out and try another take. Shall we start one?

THE "TIMES" ON THE GOLD QUESTION

Bank Of France Has Large Stocks

SECRET PURCHASES BY AMERICA

London, November 3. The city editor of the "Times" declares that neither London nor Paris believes that the United States could buy gold on a large scale in the world market since few would be disposed to exchange the appreciating gold franc for the depreciating paper dollar.

The Bank of France could easily release sufficient gold to cancel any franc credits offered by foreign holders, and the American press suggestion that the United States co-operation with the Bank of England and the Bank of France is not regarded seriously.—Reuter.

New York, November 3. The United States is already purchasing gold from abroad, according to Washington correspondents who state that the Federal Reserve Bank has secretly bought small amounts from London and Paris yesterday.—Reuter.

A HEAVY BUYER

Washington, Nov. 2. It is announced that foreign gold will be purchased both here and abroad.

The amounts bought and the prices paid will be held secret although the aggregate dealings will be announced periodically.

The foreign purchases will probably be made by the foreign branches of Federal Reserve Member Banks, payment being made by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in Reconstruction Finance Corporation Notes.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank is entrusted with all the details of the foreign purchases.

It was also announced to-day that the R.F.C. up to last night had purchased 60,000 ounces of new United States gold costing $3,100,000.—Reuter.

STILL NO SIGNS

London, November 3. There is still no sign of American purchases of gold of the £200,000 offered which is believed to have been taken by the Continent.

The price of gold is 133/2 based on a franc of 70/50 at a premium of 11/12, while the dollar is quoted at 48 3/4.—Reuter.

U.S. MONETARY CONFUSION

Inflation Leader Says He Will Wait

Washington, Oct. 23. Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma added to the general confusion that has attended the early days of the Administration's new monetary programme to-day when he indicated that he might drop his inflation programme until the wisdom of the President's latest gold order can be determined.

Senator Thomas heads the group that formerly desired drastic inflation. He had threatened to lead a revolt of the inflationists in the Senate. Shortly after his last outburst regarding the issuance of treasury certificates, he called on President Roosevelt. It was reported that the President won the skirmish and that Senator Thomas suddenly ceased his campaign.

To-day he declared that the President might be right in his decision to control currency by gold purchases but he suspected that the Administration was attempting to inflate the currency in every way except the right way. He was willing to give the gold buying programme a chance to prove itself, he said. He said the other inflationists were similarly minded but intimated they were not very hopeful.

Others in the Thomas group said that while the President's plan may work out satisfactorily they were inclined to believe that greater benefits could have been obtained by an inflation programme. Senator W. G. McAduff said he was certain that inflationary measures would be necessary if the gold policy failed to bring a substantial increase in commodity prices. He also is willing to give the gold programme however.

Senator McAduff was Secretary of Treasury during the Wilson administration.—United Press.

NO FINANCIAL CRASH

Siamese Rumours Denied

London, November 3.

Commenting on the fall Siamese securities, averaging about five points since before the rebellion, the "Times" is able to emphatically contradict rumours of an impending financial crash and says that it seems the considerable reserves in London is in no way diminished. Contrary to last year, the increased debt service has always been met from the revenue currency reserve of which two-thirds of the sterling is seventy-eight and a half per cent. of the note issue.

The Budget to March 31, next shows that the balance decline in revenue from 1930 due to the fall in the prices of rice and other commodities is more than covered by economies.—Reuter.

THE C.N.C. STRIKE

Early Settlement Likely

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 3.

An early demise of the boycott and picketing against the China Navigation Company, Ltd. is possible, because the strikers and the British shipping concern are coming closer to a settlement of the so-called Woonung dispute, it was learned to-day.

The local trouble occurred on June 15, when the wharf coolies and godown keepers of the China Navigation went on strike in support of the dismissed stewards of the C.N.C. river steamer Woonung. Supported by the Kwangtung Seamen's Union, the strikers have boycotted the steamers of the China Navigation with the result that they can not load or unload their cargo here and have eventually left out Canton as a port of call.

Officials of the Kwangtung Provincial Kuomintang are beginning to realise that the Woonung Affair at Shanghai has nothing to do with the employees of the China Navigation at Canton, and having some supervision over the Seamen's Union the Provincial Kuomintang has suggested to the strikers and the Seamen's Union that their row with the shipping company should be speedily settled in the interest of Sino-British friendship.

Negotiations between the Company and its former staff are understood to be going on, and an early liquidation of the impasse will be brought about before long.

DISCOVERY OF GOLD

Mines in Fong Yi County

Canton, Nov. 3.

Several gold mines in Fong Yi County, Kwangsi have been discovered. It was first known to the natives who spread the news until it reached the government authorities. It is learned that the provincial department of reconstruction in Kwangsi is drawing up a plan for opening up these rich mines.

The people in that locality are instructed not to explore the mines without permission, as haphazard exploitation will be disastrous to future explorations. Industrialists are asked to raise a big capital for the opening of these gold mines.—Central Press.

JAPANESE NOT WITHDRAWING

Great Wall Story Denied

Peking, Nov. 3.

The Japanese Military Attaché, interviewed this morning, denied reports that Japanese troops are withdrawing from the Great Wall. He stated that it had been decided to completely withdraw the Japanese troops from the demilitarised zone.

The troops will withdraw to Kupeikow and other passes along the Wall, but the Wall will not be given up and the passes will remain in the hands of the Japanese.

The Military Attaché states that when the present withdrawal is complete, not a single Japanese soldier will remain in the demilitarised zone.—Reuter.

LANGUAGE QUESTION IN MALTA

Cabinet Declines To Co-operate

GOVERNOR DISMISSES MINISTRY

London, Oct. 2.

OWING to Maltese Cabinet's disinclination to co-operate with the policy of His Majesty's Government, the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Malta, General Sir David Campbell, K.C.B., A.D.C., has dismissed the Ministry of the Island.

An official communique, issued from the Colonial Office, yesterday states:—

"His Excellency, the Governor of Malta, has found it necessary to dismiss his Ministers, and the Secretary of State for Colonies, being satisfied that a grave emergency has arisen within the meaning of Section 41 of the Malta Constitution, (Letters Patent), the Governor has assumed powers which in that event are vested in him by the Constitution."

For some time past, His Majesty's Government have viewed, with increasing concern, the policy pursued by the Ministers in Malta.

"It will be recalled that the restoration of a responsible Government in the summer of 1932 was made subject to certain definite provisions with regard to the language question and particularly to the teaching of languages in schools. These provisions had the full approval of both Houses of Parliament.

"It was the essence of these provisions that the language to be used in public elementary schools should be Maltese and English only, with adequate provision being made for the teaching of Italian to secondary schools.

"It has become increasingly apparent that, since their accession to office, the Maltese Ministers have embarked upon measures, the object of which is, in effect, deliberately to evade this policy. A further source of anxiety to

His Majesty's Government is the manner in which the finances of the Island have been administered. It is clear that these finances, which were taken over in a sound condition in 1932, have already been gravely prejudiced.

"In those circumstances the Governor was authorised to warn the Ministers that the policy which they were deliberately pursuing was contrary to the spirit of the Constitution and as gravely detrimental to the interests of Malta, and to make plain to them the consequences which must inevitably follow unless their policy were radically altered.

"He subsequently presented them with a detailed list of the measures, adopted by them since their accession to office, which he regarded as objectionable, and which, both in the interests of sound administration and as proof of their compliance with the policy of His Majesty's Government, he called upon them to revoke."

Examples are cited as an illustration of the nature and the extent of the acts to which His Majesty's Government took exception, and the statement proceeds:

"There have, moreover, been in the ordinary day to day administration, a number of instances indicating that the ministers had selected few opportunities, however small, of displaying their definite inclination to work in harmony with the policy of His Majesty's Government. The cumulative effect of these and similar acts is unmistakable.

The Ministers have been given an opportunity to amend their policy upon these matters. They have declined to do so and have accordingly been dismissed, and the Governor has again assumed the administration of the Island.—British Wireless Service.

WORK WITHOUT PAY?

Plight of C.E.R. Employees

Harbin, Nov. 3.

It is difficult to see how the present friction between the Manchukuo and Soviet officials of the Chinese Eastern Railway can continue much longer without causing a much more serious flare-up.

The latest cause of dispute is connected with salaries and it looks possible that all C.E.R. employees will soon be working without wages. The dispute has arisen from the refusal of the Manchukuo Chief Commissioner of the Railway to sanction the payment of the salaries of M. Kalina, M. Lavroff, M. Kubei and M. Abloff, the C.E.R. employees who were arrested on September 24.

Upon this refusal, M. Rudy, the Soviet General Manager, retaliated by instructing the cashier to stop all payments.

"Agitator" Case

Meanwhile, M. Slavutsky, the Soviet Consul-General has protested to the Foreign Ministry and demanded the release of the "agitators" arrested on October 25. The men in custody, five in number, were arrested by C.E.R. police and are alleged to be members of a Communist cell.

Their release has been refused. The Foreign Office representative says that they are to be charged with treason.—Reuter.

More Trouble

HARBIN, Nov. 3. The Manchukuo chief commissioner of the Chinese Eastern Railway has refused to sanction the payment of salaries to Messrs. Kalina, Lavroff, Kubei and Abloff, the Soviet Railway employees arrested on September 24.

M. Rudy, general manager, has retaliated by instructing the cashier to stop all payments. M. Slavutsky, Soviet Consul-General in Harbin, has protested to the Manchukuo Foreign Ministry and has demanded the release of the five Russians arrested on October 25 on a charge of being Communist agitators. This demand has been refused, as the arrested men are charged with high treason.—Reuter.

AN EVENT

NOT TO BE MISSED

INTERNATIONAL

FAIR & PAGRAMT

To be opened by Lady Peel at 2.30 p.m. Saturday, 4th November, in the Grounds of St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon.

ADMISSION:—Adults 20 cts. Children 20 cts. [1948]

notice at a boy of 14, and his signature was duly appended to an amateur form.

A couple of years ago he became a professional but the few trials with the reserves did not suggest that his early promise would be fulfilled; he was allowed to go to Peterborough.

There he was still watched by the Tottenham scout who had faith in him, and eventually the boy was brought back to gain experience with Northfleet. But it is less than a month since he first played serious football at full-back. He thought himself an outside right.

ALL WANT LAMBERT

Arsenal have now five centre-forwards on their books, and one or two others who have played in the position.

Other clubs have made a note of the fact, and representatives of five First Division teams have asked for Lambert within the last few days.

Leicester City's manager is the most persistent, and it may be that Lambert will eventually go there. The player himself, however, is quite happy—"ready to play when they want me," as he puts it.

Lambert would have been transferred to Birmingham a couple of years ago if he had given his consent. Everything else was arranged.

PERSISTENCE PAYS.

The football season is six weeks old, and that is exactly the length of time which Manager McCracken of Millwall has spent in trying to persuade Bradford City to transfer Alexander.

Apparently the Bradford people got tired of seeing McCracken at the office so frequently, and saying "No," so when the Millwall manager increased his offer last week the Bradford officials said "Yes."

Alexander will be in the Millwall team very soon, but he did not play against Bradford City as the arrangement was part of the contract. It is expected that Millwall will sign another forward with a reputation very soon.

TALL TOTTENHAM TALE

The story which has been circulated that Tottenham Hotspur had refused an offer of £20,000 for Willie Evans should not be taken too seriously.

What actually happened was this. After the international match at Cardiff last Wednesday the manager of a Midland First Division side asked the Tottenham manager how much he wanted for the Welsh outside left.

"Ten thousand pounds would not buy him," was the reply, and the conversation did not get more serious than that.

The simple truth is of course, that Tottenham would not consider selling Evans at any price.

"I found Turner, the Leeds United half-back they are all talking about, playing on a croft at Atherton—and not such a good croft at that. I couldn't arouse the interest of Manchester City or United, so I sent him to Manchester Central."—Mr. George Dale (Chelford).

An item of football news which suggests that it pays to keep one's eyes open: At the start of this season goal-keeper Burrows was out of a job. Then he noticed that Ainsworth, the York City goal-keeper, had been hurt in a motor accident. Burrows immediately called at the club headquarters, was given a trial and solved a problem for York.

When Jack Elkes, the Watford centre-half, was young in the game he kept a football at home. And on the day following any match in which he had seen a footballer do a clever trick, Elkes took the ball out into his garden and practised the trick himself.

DEAN'S ANKLE.

"There has been a loose piece of bone knocking about somewhere for some time," Everton tell me. "Under X-ray two bits were seen. Then, during the operation, a third was found." But it isn't so bad as it sounds. He may be out against Tottenham on October 21.

In addition to J. McCormick, the local player who is now a Tottenham star, Rotherham United have had Cockroft (West Ham), Beynon (Aberdeen), Sellers (Burnley), Bottrell (Huddersfield Town), Oakton (Chelsea), and Pears (Oldham Athletic) on their books, and little or no money in transfer fees was received for these players.—T. Kay (Rotherham).

WEIGHT AND SEE

"Too small," a second division official said of George Gladwin, Worksop's right half-back, when the club fell out of the Midland League, Doncaster didn't think so.

"I was wrong," he admitted after seeing the Rovers' match with Chester. "He is a splendid half-back, and played a notable part in a match that was a credit to the Third Division."

HOME RUGBY

Oxford University Beaten

London, Nov. 3.

The annual match against Cambridge University will be played at Twickenham on Tuesday, December 12.

THE MALAYAN TEAM ARRIVES

First Impressions Of Net Practise

(BY "L. B. W.")

Despite the fact that they had only just had a thrilling game of hide and seek with a typhoon, the Malayan cricket team looked fit and cheery when I saw them on the good ship Chitral yesterday morning on their arrival here. Fl. Lt. V. Croome, R.A.F., R. Morgan, R.A.F., and G. Willis arrived earlier by the Neauralia, while R. B. Lewis came down from Shanghai, and they joined the rest of the team at the Cricket Club where they had a knock at the nets.

Most of the team are new to Hong Kong, but it was good to see R. N. Hamilton, who made a big score against us in 1928, again. He is the captain and what little I saw of him at the nets impressed me no end. He was hitting very hard and timed his shots nicely, but the other members of the side showed that they found the wicket a little strange.

D. B. Gill, a brother of Lal Singh, the popular Malayan and All-India cricketer, who was here with the last Malayan team, was the first to have a knock. He was not changed as I understand the luggage had not yet arrived, but he showed that he possessed a very fine pair of wrists and a good eye. I liked his square cut, taken rather late, but he also smacks the ball hard in front of the wicket.

A USEFUL BOWLER

L. Alvis, the baby of the side, did not feel too comfortable, perhaps due to the strange light and wicket. He has a strong defence with a partiality for leg shots, but it was his bowling that impressed me. Bowling a medium-to-fast ball, he has the knack of coming off the ground very sharply. He is described as one of the most promising players of the younger generation in Malaya and his fielding is said to be brilliant, whether in the slips or in the country. His bowling not only swings a little, but breaks both ways and that, for a medium-to-fast bowler is really good.

W. O. Jonkiss, the giant of the side, stands well over six feet in height, and coming down, as he does, from such a distance, he does not find it necessary to exert himself to any great extent to put a lot of devil into his deliveries. He was rather inclined to pitch them on the leg stump when I saw him at the nets yesterday, but that I take it was due lack of practice, and a few days on a sea that was not altogether too kind.

If Dr. Hennessey had bowled with his left hand, then I would say that O. A. Speldewinde is a second edition of this famous old warrior. He bowled a very steady length yesterday and imparted a certain amount of spin to the ball. He is a tireless worker, always scheming with his slow to tempt the batsman into doing the wrong thing. He is really the veteran of the side but I do not think there is a more lively man between the wickets, and as for his batting, he looked as though he can put up a very stubborn defence when occasion demands.

The second Chinese interporier to visit Hong Kong from the Straits is Eu Chow Chye who hails from Penang. He was one of those who had to bat without his cricket boots but he gave the impression that he possesses a sound defence and at the same time a large variety of scoring strokes. He sent down a few deliveries but he did not strike me as being a bowler of interporier standard.

Probably due to the fact that he has had the opportunity of practising on a Hong Kong wicket, Fl. Lt. Croome, the stumper, looked perfectly at home when he had a knock with his team mates. He did not, however, impress me as being a first class bat though he looks as though he can break the heart of any bowler by sitting on the spicce, if and when necessary.

BATTING THE WEAKNESS?

I am afraid I did not see much of the other players, but from "advance reports," I learn that the Malayan side are strong in bowling but their batting is rather an uncertain quantity. Personally I think their captain will get a lot of runs. He is a very fine bat but what is more important still, he showed that he is seeing the ball well during his short knock at the nets yesterday.

The players are quite confident that they will give Hong Kong and Shanghai a good run for their money, but apart from saying that they will "do their best," they made no comment at all.

Their scorer, Mr. Charlton, told me that they would find the wicket somewhat strange as the wickets in Malaya are of the Australian type, built for being used. There is more grass on the Hong Kong wicket, and the result is that they are a little slower.

The team enjoyed the trip up although the weather was not exactly ideal. They did a lot of catching practice on board, but for obvious reasons there was not much batting to be had. When asked whether they will find the weather here too cold for them, one of them smilingly remarked that "we can get used to anything."

SUNDAY'S MATCH.
League—Division I.
Kick-off at 4.15 p.m.
S.W. Borderers v. South China,
Sookunpoo.

On the Railway ground, Kowloon receive the Recreio and the home team should secure full points.
The Recreio cannot get together this season, but with Bowen back in the defence they should be able to run Kowloon very close.

The Police receive the Navy at Caroline Hill and this should be a very fast game. The Navy appear to have the advantage and with the return of the Aircraft carrier they will be able to turn out a very formidable side. The Police have a very powerful team and any mistake by the defence will be accepted.

At Sookunpoo the match between the Gunners and St. Joseph's should be keenly contested but the Saints should win.

Division II winners should be:
Royal Navy, Borderers, Athletic and South China.

Division III. The following should be the results:
Win—South China, Borderers,
Lincoln, R.A.F.

Draw—R.A.S.C. and R.A.M.C.
The match of the week should be that on Sunday where South China make their first appearance at Sookunpoo this season.

The match will be very keenly fought out and the result will most probably end in a draw, the defence on both sides being very strong.

JAPANESE VIEW OF P.I. POLITICAL CONFLICTS

Suspicion of the Naval Base at Manila

(By Associated Press)

Tokyo.—American insistence on maintaining a naval base in the Philippine Islands is one reason the Hawes-Gutting scheme of independence has met with rejection at the hands of the Filipino legislature, in the opinion of the Tokyo "Asahi" leading liberal and independent journal of Japan.

In an editorial Oct. 10 devoted to the subject of Philippine independence the "Asahi" expresses the belief that the Filipinos want American naval establishments withdrawn altogether from the Islands or at least removed "to some place remote from Manila."
A translation of the editorial from the original Japanese follows:

"That Philippine Senate voted against the American bill of Philippine independence according to the latest foreign despatches. The lower house is also going to follow suit—it is indicated. All this is to seal the fate of the independence bill which the American Congress passed this spring in face of government opposition.

We are not, however, surprised in the least at the news. The bill in question was, the outset, unpopular among the Philippine islanders. It was earnestly supported by the presidents of both houses in the Philippines who were well acquainted with the American policies and conditions.
But the Philippine Congress was so decidedly unsatisfied with the bill that both presidents were at last forced out of office.

FILIPINO OPPOSITION
The Philippine people's opposition to the independence bill was fast growing (bitter) until domestic political difference was buried for a joint action against the bill. A public resolution was even passed against the proposition at a mass meeting of military men in the island.

The Filipinos are opposed not to their independence itself, of course. They are dissatisfied with the bill which fails to confer real independence upon them.
They want a decided revision of the bill so to gala a more practical independence.

The Philippine islanders dislike the unilateral imposition of tariff duties on the goods exported to America from their land, as being highly against the spirit of fairness, even during the transitory period preceding the establishment of their independence.
Another point in the bill that is disappointing to the islanders is the maintenance of the American naval base in the island after the independence.

They want the American authorities to withdraw it altogether, or, at least, remove it to some place remote from Manila. Their further desire for the sake of ensuring their independence complete and safe enough is the conclusion, prior to the realization of the independence, of an agreement with the interested Powers for the guarantee of the Philippine neutrality.

All these aspirations of the Philippines are not unnatural.
But the question is whether there is any practical possibility of such desires being realized under the existing condition of American.

It is a fact, indeed, that the Democratic party of the United States has always advocated Philippine independence. The non-nationalistic policy underlying the traditional attitude of the Democrats was well manifested in the policy of President Roosevelt on the Cuban disturbance.

Certainly such facts must be encouraging to the Philippine leaders and, according to the latest report, they are planning the dispatch another mission to Washington.

University failed to turn out a team on October 7, 1933.

The Committee decided to rearrange the fixture S.W. Borderers
v. St. Joseph's, Division I match.
This game was abandoned by the referee during the second half owing to heavy rain, on October 1, 1933.

Recreio Teams For To-day

Division I.
Club de Recreio v. Kowloon F.C., 4.30 p.m., Kowloon F.C. ground.

E. Marques, J. Bowen and R.
Silva-Netto; W. Maifer, N. T. Delgado and J. Goncalves; T. Castilho, G. Gutierrez (captain), H. T. Sousa, J. Gomez, J. C. Santos.

Division III.
Club de Recreio v. R.A.F., King's Park ground, at 2.45 p.m.:

A. R. E. Silva (captain); M.
Oliveira and B. Gaan; B. Laurel,
V. Xavier and A. E. Xavier; D.
Aquinio, H. Campos, C. Coelho; J.
Alves. Reserve: C. Marques.

Washington next spring to present a new petition to the American President.

AMERICAN EXPANSION
They seem, however, to be overlooking one most important fact, namely, that the United States government has lately come to attach special importance to the possibilities of the American economic expansion in the Pacific. This, together with the American private investment thus far made in the island to the aggregate amount of 520,000,000 yen, and the significant part the island is to play in future American development in China and the Far East, must be expected to modify the American policy towards the Philippines in the future.

While nothing conclusive can be predicted under the present circumstances, it can be observed that the Philippine people's aspiration for the acquisition of their independence, perfect and complete in name and fact, is destined to complicate the independence question to a very serious extent and thus entail an exasperating delay in the settlement of the problem.

SEQUEL TO MOTOR SMASH

European Fined $50

TWO VERSIONS OF THE INCIDENT

A recent collision on the Castle Peak Road between two motor cars had its sequel at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when Mr. A. C.
Johnstone of Messrs. Dodwell & Co., was summoned before Mr. Wynne Jones for dangerous driving.

Mr. A. Cole, Secretary to the Hon. Inspector General of Police, said he was sitting besides his brother who was driving his car when the accident occurred. They were returning to Kowloon from Castle Peak, and when near the 16
Mile Stone, they saw defendant's car coming round the corner at a speed which he estimated at between 30 and 35 miles an hour. His car was proceeding at between 20 and 25 miles.

Witness said that defendant was going at an excessive speed and was not on his proper side of the road.
It seemed to him that on seeing the approaching car, defendant swerved to the left, and in doing so his car skidded and hit the other, carrying off the rear bumper and damaging the off-side rear wheel mudguard.

Following witness' car was another one driven by Mr. B. H. O.
Hallowes of the P. W. D. Mr.
Hallowes had also been to Castle Peak and was returning to Kowloon at the same time, being some 30 or 40 yards behind.

After the accident, witness' car stopped and defendant also stopped his car about 60 or 60 yards behind. They met in the middle of the road and defendant's first words were "How much is that." Witness alleged that defendant later again offered to pay for the damage to the car.

Questioned by defendant, Mr.
Cole denied that his car was on the wrong side of the road.

AN INDEPENDANT WITNESS

Evidence was given by Mr. Hallowes to the effect that he was following Mr. Cole's car all the way from Castle Peak, being about 30 or 40 yards behind. When the accident occurred, it seemed to him that Mr. Cole was proceeding at a speed of between 20 and 25 miles an hour. As he was approaching a corner, witness saw another car rounding the bend at an excessive speed. He reckoned it to be between 30 and 35 miles an hour.

The oncoming car was going so fast that it could not negotiate the corner on its own side of the road, and struck Mr. Cole's car, the rear bumper of which was torn off with a report like that of a gun.

Mr. C.W.L. Cole, of Messrs.
Shewan Tomes and Co., who was driving the car at the time, gave corroborative evidence.

DEFENDANT'S EVIDENCE

Giving evidence defendant said he took the bend at a speed of between 20 and 30 miles an hour. Nearing the bend where the accident occurred, he saw Mr. Cole's car coming from the opposite direction and saw that it was slightly over the centre of the road. He estimated that Mr.
Cole's off side wheel was approximately eight inches over the centre, and this was confirmed when he took measurements after the accident.

Mr. L. Purvis, who was with defendant in the car, corroborated this evidence.

Mr. Wynne Jones said the case again showed how difficult it was to rely on evidence given by the occupants of two cars involved in an accident. Here they had the evidence of an outside witness, Mr.
Hallowes, who was in a better position to say what had happened. He had come to Court to say that defendant was on the wrong side of the road when the accident occurred, and he must accept that statement.
He would therefore convict the defendant.

Defendant, I have been driving for 12 years and have never had a conviction. I also hold a London Omnibus Licence.

MURDER ON BOARD A JUNK

Alleged Confession By The Accused

The police court proceedings against Chiu Lam, who was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones, with the murder of Foo Mung, a boat woman, killed on the night of September 10, opened yesterday at Kowloon Magistracy.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General conducted the prosecution, and sought to prove that a portion of a jade ear-ring found when the defendant was searched, was the property of the deceased.

Mr. Fraser after outlining the incidents leading to the accused's arrest, read a statement made by him to the effect that on the evening of the tragedy he went aboard boat No. 1352 accompanied by three other men. The party robbed the deceased and left her lying gagged upon the deck.

The first witness, Dr. John Frederick Mackie, who had conducted the autopsy upon the deceased, identified a ligature produced as the one which had gagged the deceased, and stated that death was caused through strangling.

The accused asked if he wished to question the witness, declined.
Lung Hi Wa, son of the deceased, who said he was master of cargo boat Number V.605 said he found his mother's body aboard her boat and reported the case to the water police. Questioned as to the identity of an ear-ring alleged to have belonged to her, he said that he could not definitely state that it had been his mother's.

Ching Sum, who then gave evidence seemed uncertain whether she was the sister or the cousin of Lung Hi Wa, but it was eventually proved that the deceased was her aunt.

She said she had found the victim's boat adrift with the deceased in it, lying face down wards, and she had hastened to tell the son of the tragedy.

She also was uncertain as to the ownership of the piece of jade jewelry.

Ng Mui, said she found a jade ear-ring belonging to the murdered woman in the bows of the deceased's ship, about two hours after the discovery of the crime. She had placed it in her pocket and gave it to Inspector Dorling when questioned by the police a week later.

Leung Mui, a daughter of Foo Mung, was also asked to identify the pieces of jade taken from the defendant but although she stated that they were similar to those belonging to her mother she would not swear they were hers.

The last person called to testify was Lee Sing, detective, attached to Yau-mat Station. He went to a house on Reclamation Street, in company with Inspector Dorling on September 19, and arrested the defendant who was seated at a table with five other Chinese.
He searched the defendant and found the piece of jade upon him and handed it to the Inspector.
The accused was then taken to the Police Station.

Defendant at this stage denied ownership of the jade and said that it had been given him to take care of by a man named Jung Soy Sing.

The case then adjourned until 2/30 p.m. on Wednesday afternoon.

INTERNATIONAL FAIR

To-day at St.
Andrew's Church
Grounds

As a reward to painstaking labour and detailed thought, the International Fair and Pageant which will take place this afternoon in the St. Andrew's Church Grounds promises to be one of the banner outdoor events of the season.

The programme is international from beginning to end with the following countries represented both at the various stalls, and with theatrical productions,
China, England, France, Holland, India, Scotland, United States of America, Ireland, Turkey and Italy.

Among the side-shows will be games of hoop-la, a rifle range,
Darts, an Aunt Sally, Miss White's Lucky Dip Fishing Pool and a guessing competition.

For those seeking a thrill the Switchback Railway will more than satisfy.

The entertainment is to be opened at 2.30 o'clock by Lady Peel and for those interested in dancing a carnival will be held in the Church Hall from 9 o'clock in the evening until 11.30.

The Magistrate.—I have no doubt that you are a very good driver. It is usually the good drivers who take more chances than others, and I think that's what happened in this case.
A fine of $50 was imposed.
